

$66,000 BRONZE FOR JOSEPH E. WIDENER

At the Renaissance Incense Burner Acquired by the Collector.

PRaised BY DR. BODE

New Whistler Is Shown—Child Hassam's Etchings Are Exhibited.

The $66,000 paid for the small bronze by Dr. Bode at the first day's sale of the Renaissance collection was a distinct surprise to the public, which is slow to realize the enthusiasm that the great collector, particularly in Europe, evinces for the Renaissance bronzes.

It is, however, a pleasure to know that this wonderful incense burner, which Dr. Bode, who has done as much as any one to foster the cult for Renaissance art, declared to be "one of the most beautiful Renaissance bronzes known to the world," is to remain in America.

Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia was the purchaser, and the bronze is now in his collection. The death of Mr. Morgan allowed the bronze to remain in Prof. Volpi's hands.

The bronze was made at a time when Dr. Bode was working with Donatello on the bronze doors of the Church of San Andrea at Padua, and was commissioned by his patron, the Duke of Mantua. It remained until recently in the family of the Marquis del Bagno, a direct descendant of the Duke of Mantua.

New Whistler in Town.

When a new Whistler comes to town it is everybody's duty to see it, and there is no exception in the case of the new Whistler. It is a remarkably fine portrait of Robert Barr, fine as a character interpretation and fine as a painting. It is in low tone, showing just the head and shoulders.

The exhibition includes a second picture by Whistler, "Little in Our Alley," some pen and ink drawings, lithographs and etchings. The prints include the Whistler collection of Dr. H. Nasse, Harrington, who was so closely associated with Seymour Haden and wrote "The Engraved Work" of that famous artist.

Child Hassam's Etchings.

Child Hassam, who made his first exhibition as an etcher last winter, has a second show of his work in the galleries of Frederick Knapp & Co. He has been exceedingly industrious and has now sixty plates to his credit. All the familiar qualities of Mr. Hassam's work, which have been frequently discussed in these columns, appear in the etchings.

Mr. Hassam has not been an impressionist for nothing, and many of the prints record very quick renderings from nature. In fact, it is altogether likely that the permanent fancy of Mr. Hassam's public will lean to the slightest of these etchings, which a tree or a river or a landscape indicated with but a stroke or two, as being his most definite contribution to etching art. The elaborate interiors with figures are not nearly so good as the simple sketches.

Mr. Gallatin has written a little note about Mr. Hassam for the catalogue, in which he says: "Mr. Hassam is never more happy than when working in water colors, which is quite true, and which is attested in the present exhibition, for it is supplemented with a group of water colors, among which are several charming examples."

Hollander's Paintings. The galleries of the Madison Art. Braun & Co. on West Forty-sixth street have opened for the season with a show of paintings by Emil Hollander. These are all landscapes and the subjects have been drawn from a region that is not far from New York City.

Mr. Hollander, in fact, openly avowed himself a member of the Hudson River school. Some of his best work, however, was made this school famous or notorious, as you will, and who are long since in their graves, will turn quite over at the thought.

SUNDAY MELODIOUS IN EIGHT CONCERTS

Philharmonic and Symphony Societies Contribute Orchestral Performances.

MURIEL SYMONDS HEARD

Kneisel Quartet, Godowsky and Bridwell at Harris and Hartmann at Comedy.

There were only eight concerts yesterday, so far as this Sun's news service could ascertain. Possibly some may have got away. But at any rate there was none at the Court Theatre nor the Punch and Judy, which in these times are often occupied by musicians.

The meeting was presided over by Nathan Straus and Dr. Stephen B. Wise and Jacob de Haas made the presentation address. Justice Brandeis will be designated by him to be the philanthropic purpose.

Eugene Meyer, Jr., of the brokerage firm of Eugene Meyer, Jr. & Co., 14 Wall street, is treasurer of the fund, but he declined last night to discuss the amount of the testimonial or the use to which it probably would be put.

Other on the Louis D. Brandeis testimonial committee said the delay in making the amount public was due to the expectation that it would be further increased within the next few days. They thought it would be in excess of $25,000.

The testimonial which accompanied the gift read as follows: "To the Honorable Louis Dembitz Brandeis on his sixtieth birthday, November 13, 1916, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, honorary president of the Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs, imbued to the heart with American and Jewish ideals and indefatigable worker in translating them into action—a testimonial of gratitude for his services to the Jewish people and a tribute of love and loyalty to our leader."

JEWS GIVE FUND TO JUSTICE BRANDEIS

Testimonial, Said to Exceed $25,000, to Be Used for Philanthropic Purpose.

Friends of Louis D. Brandeis, appointed by President Wilson as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday by inviting him to the office of Nathan Straus, 39 West Forty-second street, to discuss the fund.

The testimonial bore 8,000 signatures. The discrepancy in the date of the Justice's birthday and the presentation was due to the fact that the presentation had been expected in New York on his birthday, but had been unable to come.
